The aim in this paper is to move towards a general theory by producing a more comprehensive model, not by enumerating all phenomena and unifying all possible theories. Finally, while sensitivity to theory and awareness of its diverse forms and purposes is a normal part of the training of social scientists, the integration of constructs belonging to different theories is an under-explored problem of method [88].

Experiences are a main issue in tourism. However, the conceptual configuration of experiences in tourism has proved to be difficult. The English word 'experience' is rather neutral and vague; it can be understood to cover all kind of things that a person has passed through, regardless of their mental, emotianal or other relevance. There is a more precise terms available for emotional ...
